BULLETIN

news network

This issue of the AANN Bulletin is coming out almost a week late, and the reasons are two-fold. First, we have been waiting since Oct. 29 for news from the Correctional Service of Canada about Doug Stewart's transfer request. They have kept delaying this news, and as a result, I delayed printing. The news finally came, and you can see the back page for details. The second reason is that I've always considered the idea of coming out monthly, and seeing that this issue is out at the first of November, I guess now is a good a time as any to start monthly.

Man serving 22-year sentence to be prosecuted in Litton case

Oct 11 '84 W.C.B.C.
By LORNE SLOTNICK

The Ontario Attorney-General's ministry has decided to proceed with charges in Toronto against a member of an extremist group in connection with the 1982 bombing of the Litton Systems of Canada Ltd. plant in Rexdale, Ont.

Brent Taylor, one of five Vancouver-area residents convicted earlier this year in the bombing of a B.C. Hydro substation, the firebombing of a pornography shop and conspiracy to rob a Brink's truck, faces four charges related to the $3.8-million bombing.

No date has yet been set for the trial.

A spokesman for the Attorney-General's ministry said yesterday that even though Mr. Taylor, 27, is already serving a total of 22 years in Millhaven Penitentiary, the Crown felt it necessary to go ahead with the charges.

"The Crown considers this a very very serious offence," said John Yoannou. "The circumstances warrant full prosecution," he said, despite Mr. Taylor's already long sentence.

Clayton Ruby, Mr. Taylor's lawyer, said he was told of the decision on Tuesday. He said his client "is not going to plead guilty and there will be no deals." The charges against Mr. Taylor were laid in April, 1983.

The bombing of the Litton plant, two years ago this week-end, injured 10 workers, but did not disrupt the company's production of the guidance system for the U.S. cruise missile.

A communique issued several days after the bombing claimed responsibility on behalf of a group called Direct Action and said the group was "attempting to destroy part of an industrial facility that produces machinery for mass murder."

Mr. Taylor's four Litton counts were the only ones remaining of a raft of charges laid against him and Ann Hansen, Julie Belmas, Douglas Stewart and Gerald Hannah after they were arrested near Squamish, B.C., in January, 1983.

All five were sentenced earlier this year in Vancouver.

Mr. Taylor is charged with causing an explosion likely to cause serious bodily harm, causing an explosion likely to cause serious damage to property, conspiracy to cause an explosion likely to cause serious damage to property and possession of an explosive substance for the purpose of causing serious damage to property.

Black radicals arrested in New York raid

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Nine black radicals who police said had planned to attack a New York city court to free a convicted left-wing killer, were arrested in pre-dawn raids by more than 300 FBI agents and police yesterday.

Lee Laster, head of the FBI in New York, said the group also was arrested for planning an armed robbery on an armored car.

Laster named the head of the group as Randolph Simms, 41. All nine were charged with conspiracy to commit armed robbery, which carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison.

Laster said the nine belong to the New Afrika Freedom Fighters, the fighting arm of the Republic of New Afrika, a black group whose stated aim is to create an all-black nation out of six states in the South.

He said all nine had direct links to a gang of black and white radicals which made an unsuccessful attempt in suburban Nyack in October 1981 to rob a Brinks armored van carrying $1.6 million.

The nine had been preparing for months to rob armored vans and banks in New York and to free Donald Weems, a gang member jailed for life for the Nyack killings.

Third bomb blast rocks Paris
PARIS (Reuter) — The third bomb explosion to hit Paris in 24 hours severely damaged a store in the city centre last night. There were no injuries, and no immediate claim of responsibility for the blast, police said.
Two similar attacks at the weekend were claimed by Action Directe, an extreme left-wing group. The earlier targets were premises of the aviation company Marcel Dassault and of the Messier-Hispano-Bugatti company, which specializes in the manufacture of aircraft landing gear.

Letters

Politics etc....

David, AANN #13 looks really good although I do have some conflicting views with a few things said. The "Politics of Politics" from reading this it sounds like a negative analysis of people in the movement rather than a reach for solidarity. I think too much time and paper is wasted in magazines for petty bickering on conflicting views and habits. We are all hypocrites to a certain degree, can't we overlook petty squabbles and negative input, to organizing ourselves and communication? Not that I'm saying you don't want this. All in all I think the magazine is progressing quickly, with each issue better than the last. That's all for now.

In Resistance,
Jim Robertson
Hamilton, Ont.

Dear David, Let me point out to you some very basic truths you have omitted from your sermon (?) in your last issue. Each individual on this planet has basic responsibilities for beautifying and protecting this planet. But we each have our own path, direction, and capabilities based on whatever present consciousness we are in. Someone may 'act' by signing a petition and that's their way. Not everyone can and should do the same actions (for example) and one deed is no higher than the other. Sure, when it comes down to it no-one can do enough to reverse the condition this world is in, but to pour guilt or rejection upon humankind beings for where they are in life is like fighting racism with racism.

Change comes with love and understanding amongst our brothers and sisters, and that spirituality will get us where we want to go. Similarly, we are all guides for each other on this planet and consciousness grows as we grow as guides. There are better ways of saying "lets act more" without getting down on someone's back.

In light and harmony,
Sparrow,
Toronto, Ont. Canada.

Dear friends, My article in the last issue was brought about by a general negative feeling that has been developing over the past little while. This feeling is unfortunately continuing as I am finding it increasingly difficult to feel positive these days. Depressing political work such as Ken Deyarmond's upcoming trial on trumped-up charges, Brent Taylor's upcoming trial for the Litton bombing, and Doug Stewart's hunger strike in Archambault, are combined with personal political conflicts with friends that have left me drained both emotionally and politically, even more so now than last issue. Both Jim and Sparrow have made important points which I fully agree with, although some I don't. I would like to respond to those.

First, yes it was a negative analysis of people in the movement, but for the most part I think it's a realistic one. Second, I agree with Sparrow that we all have our own paths and capabilities for taking action, and I'm not saying that "one deed is ...higher than the other". I just wonder how long it will take (I think I'm getting impatient) before people realize that those in power will not release their hold just because a few hundred thousand people sign a petition. These pigs have been in power a long time, and it will take a commitment from all these signers that far surpasses what they probably realize. It means an entire change of lifestyle, of daily thought and activity. These assholes live their daily lives doing what we are opposing. They have already committed themselves to the right, to oppression, to military, to war. How can we effectively fight them if, while they are living their daily political lives, we are busy working at useless jobs (some are working for them), we are busy concerned with sports, movies, the space shuttle, and generally occupy our time with non-political activity? If we are not willing to fully commit ourselves to this struggle now, then when? We don't really have that much time left.

Anti-cruise group claims 3rd attack

^{10/11/84 STAC}
BRUSSELS (Reuters) — A shadowy Marxist group dedicated to attacking suppliers of North Atlantic Treaty Organization cruise and Pershing 2 missiles claimed its third Brussels bombing in a week early yesterday, damaging the offices of the U.S.-owned computer firm Honeywell-Europe.

The bomb exploded outside the building close to NATO headquarters. No one was injured.

The "Fighting Communist Cells," unknown until last week's attacks on subsidiaries of a U.S. and a West German firm, claimed responsibility in a letter to a Belgian journalist.

Bombings blamed on separatists

^{10/12/84 SNC}
MARSEILLE, France (UPI) — A Corsican separatist group claimed responsibility yesterday for a series of bomb blasts that damaged public buildings in Marseille and Toulon, police said.

An anonymous caller told a French news agency in Marseille the bombs, and seven others exploded this week in Lyon, were planted by the outlawed Corsican National Liberation Front separatist group to support demands by jailed group members for political prisoner status.

There were no injuries in the blasts.

Fugitive to claim status as Indian

^{10/15/84 CMTF}
LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Norwegian fugitive Nils Somy will fight deportation on the grounds that he has status as a Canadian Indian, his lawyer said yesterday.

A closed-door immigration hearing for Mr. Somy and his wife, Dagny, was adjourned after about two hours. It is to resume Tuesday.

The couple — who are in custody — plan to argue that they are not in Canada illegally because they were adopted by a British Columbia Indian band, their lawyer said.

Louise Mandel, a Vancouver lawyer, said the tribe thinks they and their two children should be treated as registered Indians, free of the rule of the Immigration Act.

Mr. Somy came to Canada in 1982 after he was charged in a bombing that cost him an arm and partial loss of his sight and hearing.

Dear David, Thanks for the recognition of interest in this issue (# 13)! I am glad that you find my concepts worth sharing. Which leads me into telling what a great article "The Politics of Elitics" is! I had to laugh $\frac{1}{2}$ way through it though! I could imagine @ feeling guilty after reading it and dashing to shut off the sets! You're certainly well endowed with the ability to speak out your thoughts, whether verbally or written. I believe that for the most part @ have made themselves solid enough to withstand most multinational products; or at least are capable minded to get around the taxation! But yes, I agree with you that there are those who make empty claims; simply to say they do belong to something! Which is their first big hang-up! Why must people feel the need to belong to a group, organization etc., yet they really could give less than a damn as to what the meaning of their involvement consists of!... Battles are not won or lost, they are fought endlessly: infinite! The war is the determination of win or lose! And our war (revolution) has not yet begun....

Strength and Respect,
Pamela Watson,
Oakdale, Iowa.

David, The Ekopedia idea is great....-people want to know what's going on across the globe. Also, it puts people who play a dissenting minority role in contact with one another. When will the USA join the network? Some of the American 'zines you review might want to act as a link. I also liked your editorial, especially the mention of Quebec and some "liberated" people's attitude to its aspirations. I just got back from a 3000 mile trip through Quebec, and the province has, in general, become kind of tame politically.

Brendan Donegan,
Dobbs Ferry, NY.

Dear Brendan, Just wanted to respond to your quiry about the USA joining the Ekopedia network. Basically, the only way they can link up is if someone or some group takes the initiative to set up a contact. That's the only way it will happen. Anyone interested can drop AANN a line, or contact the Ekopedia office in Denmark at c/o Regnbuen, Møjlgade 48, 8000 Århus C, Denmark.

Reagan claims he never called Soviet Union an 'evil empire'

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. President Ronald Reagan denies he ever used the term "evil empire" to describe the Soviet Union — even though those were the exact words he used in a major speech last year.

Reagan also says he has never described the Soviets as liars and cheats. But in 1981, at his presidential first news conference after becoming president, he said the Soviets "reserve unto themselves the right to commit any crime, to lie, to cheat."

The denials came in an interview published yesterday in U.S. News and World Report. "Mr. President," the magazine's editors asked, "why would you expect the Soviets to negotiate with you on arms control after the way you've denounced them as liars and cheats who run an evil empire?"

Reagan replied: "Let me go back and recall the press conference when those words were spoken. They were in answer to a direct question, and they weren't my words."

The AANN Bulletin has joined the Ekopedia Network. This is a network of people who put out information bulletins for their region or country. There are Ekopedia centres in Denmark, Sweden, Norway, France, Finland, England, Ireland, West Germany, Switzerland, Holland, and now Canada. The idea is to put out a bulletin every month or so with alternative news, and distribute it to all the Ekopedia offices who in turn will distribute the news locally. The AANN Bulletin will act as the bulletin for Ekopedia Canada, and at the same time, include the news received from the other Ekopedia offices.

Bomb joke backfires on Reagan

NEW YORK (UPI) — About 100 workers at the Reagan-Bush campaign headquarters were evacuated yesterday when they found signs attached to the front door saying, "We will be bombing in five minutes."

The threat was apparently a hoax, but police directed workers to leave the building on Madison Ave. while a bomb squad searched the office.

In a microphone test before a radio speech Aug. 11, Reagan joked that "we begin bombing Russia in five minutes."

What did Reagan say about missiles?

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. President Ronald Reagan last night denied Democratic challenger Walter Mondale's accusation that he once said missiles from submarines could be recalled. For the record here is what Reagan said at a May, 13, 1982, news conference:

Referring to missiles in silos, Reagan said "once that button is pushed, there is no defence; there is no recall. And it's a matter of minutes, and the missiles reach the other country." Referring to other missiles carried on bombers, in ships, including submarines, Reagan went on: "You are dealing there, with a conventional type of weapons or instrument, and those instruments can be intercepted. They can be recalled if there has been a miscalculation.

"And so they don't have the same, I think, psychological effect that the presence of those other ones that, once launched, that's it; they are on their way, and there's no preventing, no stopping them."

$800,000 in aid promised by RCMP for Grenada force

The RCMP will help train and equip a new police force for the island of Grenada, which since the invasion a year ago by the United States has been patrolled by troops from neighboring countries.

In response to a request from Grenada's interim Government, Canada will donate a total of $800,000 in equipment and training for the new Royal Grenada Police Force. Sean Brady, spokesman for the External Affairs Department, said the bulk of the equipment will be used for telecommunications and to set up a photo registry.

The RCMP will also train six middle-level administrators for the force, and help plan the curriculum for the Caribbean Regional Police Centre which has been established in neighboring Barbados.

Mr. Brady said the aid package does not represent a shift in Canadian policy towards Grenada. The Canadian Government opposed the U.S. invasion of the island on Oct. 25, 1983.

He also emphasized that the equipment would not be used by a regional paramilitary force proposed by the United States. Training of the 80-member military unit for Grenada is expected to begin this fall.

External Affairs Minister Joe Clark, in a statement released in Ottawa, stressed the importance of "maintaining law and order with an apolitical constabulary," describing it as essential for the success of the Dec. 3 general election in Grenada.

Give civilian spy agency access to police data solicitor-general says

10/16/84

By Brian McAndrew Toronto Star

Canada's new civilian security agency has been denied direct access to a police computer information system containing data ranging from criminal records to the status of your driver's licence.

But federal Solicitor-General Elmer MacKay says he's going to have that changed.

The Canadian Security Intelligence Service should have direct access to CPIC — the Canadian Police Information Centre, MacKay said.

"I've already made some inquiries," MacKay told The Star last night. "I think they should have the maximum possible access to information. I'm going to see that can be done."

Advisory committee

Canada's intelligence agency lost its computer link to CPIC, which contains a large amount of information about individuals, when it became a civilian operation.

The civilian agency doesn't qualify for direct access to the system by strict application of the CPIC rules set by an advisory committee of Canadian police officials, MacKay said.

CPIC is operated by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Ottawa and is available through computer hook-up exclusively to the federal police force, the Ontario and Quebec provincial police and municipal police departments.

The security agency must now make written requests for the information it wants through the RCMP, MacKay said.

Information available from CPIC includes criminal records, names and descriptions of wanted criminals, individual bail and parole conditions, and driver and motor vehicle registrations.

The spy agency last July replaced the security service of the RCMP, losing its status as a police division.

'Secret' U.S. plans for sale in gift shop

10/13/84

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A commemorative envelope sold in Houston's Johnson Space Centre gift shop shows drawings of a top secret U.S. Navy space program, Aviation Week magazine reports.

The magazine says the envelopes carry the words Project Whitecloud and accurate drawings of a mother satellite and three smaller spacecraft. Other text says the satellite disperses the smaller craft to cover more ocean surface and uses antennas to detect shipboard radar from space. U.S. Navy officials would not comment on the report.

RCMP disciplinary code concerns federal judges

10/19/84

WINNIPEG (CP) — RCMP disciplinary measures against officers who have broken the law appear to violate the principle of fairness, a federal judge said yesterday.

Mr. Justice John Urie of the Federal Court of Appeal told an appeal hearing that some procedures of the RCMP's discipline and demotion tribunal are a breach of natural justice.

"This bothers me," Judge Urie said. "And I'm sure it bothers my brothers (Mr. Justice Darrel Heald and Mr. Justice Arthur Stone)."

He made the comments during an appeal by former Constable Terry Willet, who claims to have wrongfully dismissed by the force after being convicted of assault.

His lawyer argued that the RCMP tribunal tendered evidence against Mr. Willet that would never have been admissible in a regular court of law.

Mr. Willet was one of three Mounties convicted in the off-duty assault of two youths in The Pas, Man., in June, 1981. He is seeking reinstatement and compensation.

The three federal judges reserved their decision on the appeal, but each expressed reservations about the inner workings of the RCMP tribunal.

Protection from attack added at nuclear sites

10/16/84

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is installing improved protection around missile bases and other nuclear sites to thwart possible terrorist attacks in Western Europe, a senior defence official said yesterday.

"Devices are being installed that are responsive to what we think we have learned about how the sites might be attacked by terrorist groups," the official told reporters at a briefing in which he outlined matters to be discussed next week by alliance defence ministers at a meeting in Italy.

Among other important matters on the agenda, he said, will be a discussion of "improving security of nuclear weapons in Europe against terrorist and other threats."

The official indicated that the "other threats" were operations Soviet special forces could be expected to mount in the early days of a NATO-Warsaw Pact war. They were expected to try to knock out and overrun Pershing 2 and ground-launched cruise missile bases.

weapons depots and air bases where the weapons are stored.

This official, who did not want to be named, said the Soviets were assigning the highest priority to training forces to knock out the intermediate-range Pershing 2s, which are gradually being deployed in Western Europe in positions to strike into the Soviet Union.

As for terrorist threats to nuclear bases, the official said work had already progressed on installing a variety of sensors, including devices that would delay terrorists in reaching nuclear bunkers.

In the event of war between NATO and the Warsaw Pact, nuclear weapons would probably be dispersed quickly from existing sites to make it more difficult for the Soviet units to reach them, the official said.

Other items on the schedule for the Oct. 10-12 NATO Nuclear Planning Group meeting include a U.S. briefing on the worldwide status of nuclear forces, and reports on the U.S. sea-launched cruise missile program and the status of the Pershing 2 and ground-launched

Crews dig anti-tank trenches near U.S. State Department

By Peter Goodspeed 10/16/84
Toronto Star

WASHINGTON — The shadow of terrorism has fallen across this city. Yesterday, construction crews began digging 1.2 metre (four-foot) deep tank traps in front of driveways leading to the U.S. State Department.

Metal barricades were also being installed across garage ramps leading to the main State Department building.

And Secret Service agents at major public buildings, from the White House to the U.S. Capitol, have stepped up security patrols and anti-terrorist searches.

It's all part of a new $110 million anti-terrorist protection program the United States is undertaking to protect government officials and public buildings at home and abroad.

Concrete barriers have been installed in front of all major public buildings in the U.S.

capital; bullet-proof metal plates have been installed in the backs of all the chairs in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives; thirty metal detectors have been installed at entrances to the U.S. Capitol building and visitors have to have their bags searched and visitors to all major government buildings must wear security passes and check in and out with armed security guards.

At night, police regularly stage mock rescue exercises at the U.S. Capitol, swinging down the face of the building on ropes, pretending terrorists have seized the Senate chamber.

The tank traps being installed at the State Department are covered with electrically operated metal covers that will normally be closed. In an emergency the metal trap covers will be raised to form a barricade and expose the deep security trench at entrances to the building.

CanadaMY LIFE DEPENDS ON YOU

This is a pamphlet written by Marti Koski in an attempt to publicize his bizarre story. He believes he has been targetted by the RCMP as a 'guinea pig' in experiments in mind control and "telepathic terrorism" using microwaves. This pamphlet details his claims and facts dating back to 1952. Printed below is his opening statement. You really must read this pamphlet to fully understand his story. (For 50¢ + an S.A.S.E. from AANN.)

Friends

I know what I am about to tell you will sound bizarre, almost beyond belief--RCMP surreptitious testing of a telepathic amplifier that works with microwaves to control people's minds and bodies, voices in the air, spy schools, interrogation, toxic gas--I know how crazy it all sounds.

I know your first reaction will likely be to dismiss me as some kind of "kook" who has sadly lost touch with reality.

I know if I hadn't been victimized by this "experimentation" I would probably react the same way. But I am asking you not to.

I am asking you to take a few minutes to read through this pamphlet, to think about other things we all know have happened that tested our belief and trust in those in charge of our society, to reflect on the story I have to tell and finally, to give me the benefit of your doubt.

For, if there is, in your mind, the slightest chance what I have to tell holds some truth, doesn't it demand and deserve your further concern?

I know my story sounds like the plot from some low budget science fiction spy thriller that could never happen in real life. The problem is it did happen in my life. And it could happen in yours if you don't join me in my battle today to expose and resist this attack on human dignity.

I may have been one of the first victims of this sinister program; but, without your help, you can be sure I will not be the last victim.

H.A.R.E. is a national coalition of animal (and other) groups formed to fight all aspects of the rabbit breeding industry. We do not wish to see rabbits turned into "meat-producers", "furbearers", or breeding machines, and object to the subjection of yet another species to the horrors of intensive-confinement production. Because the industry is still in its infancy, we believe that there is yet hope for rabbits.

This is a crucial time for the rabbit-breeding industry. As ARBA President Dr. Terry Reed says, "The rabbit industry is booming! At no time in history has there been the interest in all phases of the rabbit industry as there is at this time." We too are interested in rabbits--not as "things" to make a profit from, but as sentient beings entitled to live out their lives free from suffering inflicted upon them by man. Such exploitation of living creatures can only lead to the deterioration of the quality of life for humans and non-human animals alike.

Groups wishing to join H.A.R.E. or individuals interested in helping (or for more info) may contact us (at the above address). We are a non-profit all-volunteer organization dependent on your support to continue our work on behalf of rabbits. Any contribution, however small, will be welcome.

Ex-secret police probed in Italian bomb horror

10/22/84 STAR
ROME (Reuter) — Two former Italian intelligence officers are being investigated in connection with one of Italy's worst post-war horrors — the Aug. 2, 1980, bomb explosion at Bologna railway station that killed 85 people.

Gen. Pietro Musumeci, former vice-director of the Military Secret Service SISMI, and Col. Giuseppe Belmonte, a one-time colleague, were among six people arrested last Friday on charges of conspiracy, embezzlement and possessing arms and explosives.

Italian Justice sources said the two have been told they are under investigation in connection with the bombing, for which no one has so far been tried.

The sources gave no further details. Italian state television said yesterday investigators suspect former SISMI officers tried in 1981 to pin the bombing on West German neo-Nazis in a bid to lead inquiries into a blind alley.

In January, 1981, police, acting on a secret service tip, found explosives similar to those used in Bologna on a Milan-bound train. They also found two Milan-Munich air tickets made out to passengers with German names.

Shortly afterward, SISMI sent magistrates a report implicating the extreme right-wing West German Hoffmann group.

RAPE, PORNOGRAPHY, AND WAR

Pornography: By this we don't mean just any explicitly sexual material, but distortions of sexuality which degrade and de-humanize womyn & children. In this way pornography often serves as 'basic training' for...

Rape: Rape is the practise of the ideology of porn. It actually has very little to do with sex, and everything to do with power - male power over womyn, children, & other men (patriarchy). The ultimate extension of the rapists' craving for power is...

War: This is the ultimate expression of the way men's sexuality is twisted under patriarchy. In war he can rape, not just one woman, but a people, a land, or even the entire planet (nuclear war). This cannot go on!!! So what do we do? Take...

Direct Action: 'Solutions' to these problems which rely on state power is part of the problem, we must keep in mind that we are seeking to destroy power not people and our means must agree with our ends. We are opposed to state censorship, harsher prison sentences, etc. To stop porn, rape, & war, we must stop patriarchy. We can do this by reclaiming control over our own lives and acting directly against those who threaten our lives. Direct action does not have to be violent - violence is another exercise of power. We call on all people to take direct action against patriarchy-now.

Muzzled KKK gets a backer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Civil Liberties Union has come to the aid of the Ku Klux Klan over the right to free expression.

The ACLU filed suit Wednesday to force police to disclose the surveillance methods used in the arrest of six Modesto Klansmen during last summer's Democratic national convention in San Francisco.

"The method in which the police stopped the Klan group from protesting raises serious First Amendment questions," said ACLU lawyer Amitai Schwartz.

The Superior Court suit seeks a videotape and other police records documenting the arrest and an alleged order that the six members of the white-supremacist KKK would be forbidden to march outside the convention and had to get out of town.

In response to an ACLU letter, Police Chief Cornelius Murphy refused to make those records public, Schwartz said.

He said the suit asks Murphy to disclose — under the state's public records law — how police monitored and controlled the KKK and other groups during the convention.

'Spies' join fight to cut South African oil flow

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Seamen and port workers around the world are being drafted into an anti-apartheid "spy network" that threatens oil supplies to South Africa, Johannesburg's Sunday Express reports.

In a report from London, the newspaper said Britain's National Union of Seamen is one of the prime movers in the campaign to supply information to the anti-apartheid Shipping Research Bureau based in the Netherlands.

"The network threatens major disruptions to South Africa's vital oil trade, by embarrassing governments and forcing them into taking action against individuals, oil companies, suppliers and shipping companies, and by forcing up the price of oil to South Africa by those disruptions," it said.

Monitoring by trade unions from dozens of countries is aimed mainly at oil, but will extend to other commodities, the newspaper said.

Move in Euro Parliament to ban use of plastic bullets

STRASBURG, France — A new attempt to force the British Government to stop using plastic bullets in Northern Ireland has been launched in the European Parliament.

The attempt is being spearheaded by the British Labor Party, now numbering 32 MEPs, backed by their socialist colleagues from other European countries. They have tabled a resolution for the first meeting of the parliament after the summer recess.

The resolution has been drafted by the London South Labor MEP Richard Balfe, one of those behind the parliament previous vote, in May 1982, to ban the use of plastic bullets in all EEC countries.

In May of 1982 the parliament voted by a majority vote of 110 to 43, to ban the use of plastic bullets in all EEC countries and urged the Council of Ministers to come out in opposition to the weapon. The new resolution goes on to single out the British government in its call on all member-state governments to ban the use of plastic bullets within their own boundaries.

Acquitted detectives get guns back

10/23/84 STAN

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Two Sherbrooke police detectives have their guns back, just two days after being acquitted of all charges in the slaying of an innocent man.

Roger Dion and Andre Castonguay, both 41, had been prohibited from carrying firearms although they were on active duty.

Of the acquittal, police officer Luc Begin said everyone in the department is happy.

But relatives of Serge Beaudoin, 33 — the carpet-layer who was killed in the Dec. 23 raid at a motel in nearby Rock Forest — are angry.

"According to the law, you are supposed to be innocent until found guilty," said Rejean Beaudoin, brother of the slain man. "My brother was found guilty and executed without a trial."

Beaudoin's mother, Cecile, lamented that "the policemen didn't take the time to verify the identity of their suspects" and said the verdict was "hard to swallow."

Beaudoin was killed and work partner Jean-Paul Beaumont, 33, was wounded when hit by bullets fired through the door of their motel room as they slept.

The police officers admitted firing the shots, but said they acted in self-defence, believing the room to be occupied by armed robbers who had killed a Brink's guard the previous day.

Prosecutor Francois Doyon ruled out an appeal and declined to speculate whether the crown will drop charges against detective Michel Salvail, who was in command of the raid.

Salvail, still on active duty, is awaiting a decision on his appeal of a Superior Court ruling sending him to trial on a charge of dangerous use of a firearm.

The officers involved in the raid still face civil proceedings.

Damage suits totalling $836,000 have been launched by Beaumont, Beaudoin's mother and wife, the owner of the motel, and motel employees on duty at the time.

La Presse columnist Marc Laurendeau said the verdict "goes against simple good sense" and demonstrates the "quasi-immunity enjoyed by policemen" acting in the course of law enforcement.

No policeman has ever been convicted for killing a suspect in Quebec.

$ African police fire at youths

10/18/84 STAN

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South African police fired rubber bullets and tear gas shells yesterday at 500 black youths who were throwing stones at them in the black township of Vosloorus, a police spokesman said. No injuries or arrests were reported in the incident, one of dozens of outbreaks of violence which have left 80 people dead in the past few weeks.

More than 100,000 black school pupils are still boycotting classes over a variety of grievances, although the government earlier this week agreed to one of their demands, to allow the setting up of student representative councils.

Subway riders 'kidnapped'

by cursing conductor

NEW YORK (AP) — A subway conductor will likely be "re-instructed in customer courtesy" after he took 80 commuters on a wild ride during which he cursed them over the train's loudspeakers, New York city Transit Authorities say.

The incident began when passengers were ordered off the train because of technical problems. But an announcement said service would resume and 80 people jumped back on, infuriating the conductor, one witness told the New York Daily News today.

The conductor said: "Now we're going to take you for a ride," and the train roared through Manhattan for 30 minutes until the irate passengers were finally let out at another subway station. The conductor was not charged.

-Knocking Down Your Door

Anarchism...poverty, violence, inequality and decadence exist and flourish today yet parliament isn't able or willing to improve the situation. We therefore seek the abolition of Government and the demolition of its wretched, dogmatic institutions. Law doesn't mean order. Anarchy isn't chaos.

Tuesday 14th August 1984: 7:00am. The political police were out in force, smashing down the doors of 4 squatted houses and the local anarchist bookshop at 121 Raiton Rd. Brixton...The police, over 50 of them, used Firearms Warrants (which need very high-up approval) and covered our homes front and back as the heavies rushed in. BUT THEY FOUND NOTHING. The nearest they came to a firearm was an anti-rape spraycan. The woman who owned it was arrested and later released without any charge, likewise no charge for 'stealing tools' (she is a carpenter and has her own tools). One person was arrested for having 2 small marijuana plants. Another just because 'his name rang a bell', he was later found to have skipped bail on a small charge. The cops stole his address books after arresting him. They did not even look for firearms, not a floorboard was lifted. The cops were more interested in finding out identities and anything political they could.

At the bookshop they spent 3 hours going through everything, at times we were not able to get inside as the bomb squad went through with sniffer dogs. Anything 'bugs', drugs, or firearms could have been planted by them as we were not able to follow their search.

Even Ted Knight, Lambeth Council Leader and an old enemy of ours, had to admit "There has never been any suggestion that those people who run the bookshop have been involved in terrorism (sic) in any way...It is outrageous that their personal lives should have been interfered with in this way." Lambeth Council are in the process of taking us to court to evict us after we have been in occupation for 3½ years.

Why All This Barbarity & Brutality????

1. Because we don't conform...we don't want to wait 10 years for a shitty flat when hundreds lie empty. We're not amused by Milton Keynes, the SAS, pin-up girls, Lady Di or Dallas. We organize to help ourselves without being controlled by anyone.
2. Because we bring out uncensored news and information that you'd never see on television or in the press.
3. Because we support the miners in their heroic class war against the rich scum who live off our backs.

4. Because they need a scapegoat, and its slander us as 'criminals' and the raid as 'illegal' when a "firearms" warrant is used to attack people if they can be divided off from others be they blacks, gypsies, ers, anarchists...we threaten that process solidarity.

5. Inspector Speed who was supervising the has said -falsely- in the past that we were a gambling club. Such police clearly were of Brixton.

Our only 'crime' is to seek freedom. Police attack us because we produce papers, es, housing aid, jumble sales and benefit cal causes and the miners. Because we oppose, government, imposed power groups a ruling class in every way we can.

A new 'Stop The City' video is now available. 'Breakthrough' can be loaned from 121 Brixton Rd. London SE 24, England. It lasts 23 minutes and has interviews and music. are needed to buy blank tapes which cost $10 each. Any old tapes are also welcome.

Dogs freed in new raid

Five members of the South East Animal Liberation League narrowly escaped arrest at the weekend when they raided research laboratories in Surrey.

The raiders, members of the same group responsible for the recent raid on the Royal College of Surgeons labs in Downe, Kent (CL154) soon parted company with pursuing police officers and got away with 14 beagles from the BIOS research laboratories in Bagshot late on Saturday night.

They claim the dogs were suffering from skin, mouth and eye infections and said 'they have been taken to safe homes'.

The raiders added that BIOS are involved in the testing of cosmetics, toiletries and food additives. The whole raid was photographed and recorded on video.

.....THE STOP 'THE CITY' PROTESTS.....LATEST NEWS.....THE TRUTH.....

This is a brief and honest report of something we're involved in and feel strongly about. At the beginning of this week people gave out 7-8000 leaflets in Haringey publicising last Thursday's (27th) Stop 'the City' protest. The event in 'the City' of London was the culmination of a week of independent local actions around the country against banks and other institutions which rule our lives and are ruining our beautiful planet. They make money while millions of people go hungry, are killed or trapped in wars, are exploited, pushed around and generally treated like shit.

About 1500 people came to 'the City' to challenge the headquarters of these companies - the nerve-centre of profiteering. All day, 8am to 6pm, groups and individuals courageously distributed diverse leaflets, free vegetarian food, held banner protests and pickets, put stickers and graffiti on walls, ran about to liven up a soul-destroying area and reclaim the streets, and carried out actions against banks etc. This happened all over the area, and later in the West End, despite violent military-style policing.

There were protests against the exploitation of animals (pickets of a meat factory and also in fur-trade area of the 'City', taking over the admin block of London Zoo, breaking window of Skin Deep leather boutique), protests against banks and their international involvements (people broke windows of Barclays which finances Apartheid in S. Africa, Midlands, Halifax, threw horseshit inside others, and 30 people took over the Moscow-Narodny bank for 20 mins and then broke windows), actions at other money-making firms (D.H. Evans, Debenhams etc, which profit while millions of people are forced to go without). In Soho, 50 people demanded an end to sexploitation and broke windows of porn shops. Later, about 200 marched through that bastion of 'truth' - Fleet St. Saatchi and Saatchi, who do propaganda campaigns for the Government and Coal Board, were closed down with a smoke flare and window broken. About 20 cyclists did slow cyclistides with placards to slow up business traffic and spread ideas.

Many people were understandably frightened and made angry by heavy police repression and violence, but tried to treat these hired protectors of the wealthy and powerful with the contempt they deserve - ignoring them or defending themselves (using a smoke flare under a police van, electronic radio jammers, and snatching and breaking police cameras). But the cops were so intimidating, it was almost impossible to gather naturally in the centre of 'the City'.

SOME THOUGHTS - The people who came were mostly young and already active in opposition to wars, animal exploitation, homelessness etc. They generally feel that it's the whole System based on money and power which is the cause of all our problems. They believe a real fightback is needed.

But there are millions who hate the way money controls our lives, who know there's injustice and now destruction hanging over us, who'd like to live in a peaceful society based on sharing and freedom. Who wouldn't? We hope they will join with us in these protests, especially those who're already organised and opposing the System in some way (the mining communities, peace movement, pensioners and tenants groups, people campaigning against hospital closures, etc.). But it seems that there is still the illusion amongst us that we can make things better by voting, lobbying MPs, or just concentrating on a particular concern.

We think all these struggles should link up and begin to attack directly the common cause of their problems - a society based not on people, but on profits and power.

We also realise that all around us people are isolated and don't have the confidence yet to challenge their employers and other injustice. Many seek to escape everyday boredom and meaninglessness with drugs (alcohol, dope etc), TV, material possessions and religion - but these things are in the end empty substitutes for real community and a free and creative life.

It's up to ourselves, all of us, to organise ourselves, support each other and fight back strongly against this corrupt and destructive System. Together we are powerful.

- our love and solidarity to you.....some haringey anarchists p.s. The idea is spreading! There'll be similar protests in Birmingham, Manchester and Glasgow in the next month. All over the world, people are resisting oppression...

GLASGOW UNEMPLOYED STORM PRICE WATERHOUSE

At 7.30 am on Tuesday, 4th September, twelve unemployed members of the Clydeside Anarchist Group stormed a multi-storey office block in Glasgow's city centre. In what was described as a "military style operation" by the Glasgow Herald, they went in to occupy the 13th floor office headquarters of the Price Waterhouse firm, the millionaire accountancy outfit which sequestered the South Wales Miners' funds. Within minutes they had slung out a security officer and barricaded themselves in the offices by fixing 3 millimetre thick steel plate over the doors and putting up barricades.

With the police unable to gain entry, they spelt out their demands to Price Waterhouse: that the South Wales Miners' funds be restored to them and that the firm would undertake no further sequestrations. Predictably, the head office in Birmingham refused to do either. Meanwhile two 60-foot banners were stretched round the outside of the block reading: GLASGOW BACKS THE MINERS and UNEMPLOYED SOLIDARITY. Thousands of leaflets explaining the action were handed out at job centres and dole offices all over Glasgow and news of the occupation was sent immediately to South Wales NUM.

In the late afternoon the occupants ended their action on the understanding that Price Waterhouse themselves would press no charges. They were grabbed by the police and taken away to the local nick where the twelve were strip-searched and then charged with breach of the peace and malicious damage. They face considerable fines and will be on trial on the 10th of December. Since all twelve defendants are on the dole they will find any fine very hard to meet. All contributions to their defense fund should be sent to: Autonomy Press, 4th Floor, 64 Queen Street, Glasgow.

The rest of the working class must join the miners by taking the offensive against the boss class. Solidarity goes beyond just collecting money. And it's no good waiting for the power cuts before we start causing trouble.

TWELVE men were sent for trial yesterday accused of barricading themselves in the office of accountants authorised to sequester the union funds of South Wales miners.

The men, who appeared at Glasgow Sheriff Court, are charged with forcing their way into the office of Price Waterhouse on the 13th floor of St Andrews House, 141 West Nile Street, Glasgow on Tuesday.

Solicitors Thomas Scott, who appeared for 11 of the men, and William McAfee lodged pleas of not guilty.

Sheriff Ian Hamilton, QC, sent the men for trial in December and all were allowed bail.

'RADIKAL' IS BE REPUBLISHED

"Radikal", the West Berlin monthly magazine, is being published again. It was closed down by the West Berlin police earlier this year. Two of its journalists, Michael Klöckner and Benny Härlin were sentenced to two years jail each - a sentence they both escaped by being elected to the Europarlament as West German Green candidates. Both had been charged with supporting terrorism by publishing letters and declarations of the Revolutionary Cells (RZ) in the magazine. After the court case the police then began its persecution of Radikal in earnest - by confiscating all its mail, by searching the offices, print works and the homes of the journalists - confiscating material. In one police precinct in south-east Los Angeles there was a murder every three days in 1983; by mid-February this year there had been 17. The police go heavily armed. As well as their .38 service revolvers and their steel batons, most carry a fiendish device known as a Taser: at the touch of a button the Taser spits out a pair of thin copper wires with small fish-hooks on the end; these stick into the suspect's skin, and allow the policemen to touch the button again and fell the man with 50,000 volts of DC electricity. "Works every time," said Sergeant Howard Yamamoto. "It fells a guy like a nippin. But they're safe. They've even tested them on guys with pacemakers, I've heard, and they just get up and walk away."

Evangelist's wife falls ill as row simmers over 'pray TV' funding

10/7/84 STAR

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Tammy Bakker, the wife of the PTL (Praise The Lord) Club evangelist, has been hospitalized for exhaustion amid a controversy over the finances of the Christian television show's hosts.

Jim Bakker acknowledged Thursday to his Canadian and U.S. TV audience that he has purchased a $449,000 mountaintop home near Palm Springs, Calif. The purchase came after the Bakkers told viewers last August they gave nearly all they owned to the financially troubled PTL Club.

Mrs. Bakker, 42, "overworked and exhausted," checked into a California hospital for tests with her husband at her side, PTL spokeswoman Joan Lacey said.

"She had a rapid heartbeat and the doctor was quite alarmed," Lacey said.

She said Jim Bakker could not be reached for comment on his personal finances.

The Bakkers bought the home, complete with a swimming pool, May 25 with a $149,000 down payment and a $300,000 loan, public documents show.

Soon after, Bakker bought a 1953 Rolls-Royce for $55,000 and a 1984 Mercedes-Benz for $45,033, the newspaper said.

Bakker told viewers last month that PTL owed $5 million to the 200 stations he said carry the show. About 20 stations have dropped the show, and PTL building projects have been delayed. Several creditors have filed liens and lawsuits, saying PTL owes them more than $324,000, he added.

15 Britons volunteer for 'Martian' island

10/11/84 STAR

LONDON (Reuters) — A British nobleman plans to turn an uninhabited island into a mock Martian colony to find out if humans can eventually live on the Red Planet.

Lord Young, who represents the Social Democratic party in the House of Lords, said a number of volunteers had signed up to man the colony. He has launched a $500,000 appeal for the project, known as the Argo Venture.

He said in a speech to the Royal Society, Britain's scientific academy, that 15 men and women had asked to live on the unnamed island off the British coast for a year, according to rules imagined to be vital for the first human colony on Mars.

Young said he wanted 30 people to live on the colony.

Students arrested on phone charges

10/5/84 CMBE

MONTREAL (CP) — Four Montreal students have been arrested on charges they used their computers to obtain at least $12,000 worth of free long-distance telephone calls by tricking Bell Canada's computer system.

"This is the first case in Canada where home computers were used to obtain free long-distance calls," said Bert Tremblay, Bell's director of toll-fraud information.

When the four men, aged 18 to 21, were arrested on Wednesday, he said, they were believed to be working to extract important security information from Bell.

The four were not billed for the long-distance calls because they tricked Bell's computer by feeding it false information that a caller had hung up before the telephone at the other end was answered, he said.

Mr. Tremblay said the four didn't know each other well because they normally communicated by computer "using code names like Batman."

Moms rally for higher welfare payments

10/26/84

By Chris Welner Toronto Star

Singing the rock song We're Not Going To Take It, about 150 people protested outside Queen's Park yesterday demanding higher welfare payments from the province.

Patricia Butler, a 19-year-old single mother, was part of the crowd shouting for Social Services Minister Frank Drea to fork over more cash or give up his job.

"We eat good for three weeks, then the groceries run out," said Butler of Eglinton Ave. W., who lives on $526 a month.

"After I spend $60 a month on diapers and another, $20 for the laundry, I have to take my baby to the Scott Mission for food," she said. "We need more rallies like this so people recognize what we're fighting for."

"Just because we're poor, single and mothers doesn't mean we aren't people."

Want increase

Maria Ociepa, 26, of the Mothers' Action Group, co-organizers of the rally with the Toronto Union of Unemployed Workers, told the crowd, "We're tired of government studies telling us how poor we are. We know we're poor and we'll remain poor until our government does something."

Ociepa, a mother of three living on $612 a month, said her group wants an immediate 15 per cent hike in welfare allowances, at least 300 low-cost housing units built in Ontario during the next year and free public transit and other services that would help those on welfare get jobs.

The group also wants the province to stop its plan to transfer to municipalities the administrative responsibility of single parents on mothers' allowance.

Liberal social services critic Bill Wrye said, Ontario's "provision of affordable housing has been nothing short of disgraceful", denying a basic right all individuals should have.

CHERBOURG, France (UPI) — A Japanese cargo vessel carrying 250 kilograms (550 pounds) of highly radioactive plutonium headed for open sea today, where it was expected to rendezvous with a protective escort of U.S., British and French navy ships, the international environmental group Greenpeace.

Greenpeace said the plutonium, valued at $3.5 million, had come from a processing plant in nearby La Hague and was being sent to Japan's Jyoy nuclear power station. French news reports said the material could be used in nuclear weapons.

The operation was called "Operation Plutonium" by Greenpeace.

New Zealand to reconsider ban on nuclear ships

10/19/84 STAR

WELLINGTON (Reuter) — New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange said yesterday he would ask his government to consider allowing U.S. nuclear-powered ships to visit New Zealand if Washington could show they were environmentally safe and not nuclear-armed.

Lange told a press conference that if the United States could satisfy the Labor party government that a particular ship met these requirements, he would urge his cabinet to reconsider its opposition to visits by nuclear-armed or nuclear-powered ships.

Labor won an election this summer with a policy of barring visits by nuclear vessels. This has sparked a dispute between the United States and New Zealand.

Greece tightens rules on nuclear ship visits

10/13/84 STAR

ATHENS (Reuter) — Greece said yesterday it is tightening rules over visits to its territorial waters by nuclear-powered vessels.

The statement said Greece never objected in principle to visits by nuclear-powered ships but that from now on they must give three weeks' notice of visits, undergo more checks and give details of what security measures are taken on board.

The announcement was the first official comment on reports in the conservative Greek newspaper that serious problems had arisen between Greece and the United States over visits by nuclear-powered vessels of the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

Screaming jets frighten caribou, natives claim

10/10/84

STAR

OTTAWA (CP) — Low-level combat exercises over Labrador and northeastern Quebec are disrupting Canada's caribou herds, native Indian spokesmen say.

The high-speed flights are conducted by West German and British air forces in agreement with the Canadian government. They frighten caribou herds into changing their migration routes and abandoning calving ranges, Peter Penashue told a news conference yesterday.

Penashue is one of about 10,000

Innu, or Naskapi-Montagnais Indians, who live in the isolated region.

About 12 days ago, an estimated 10,000 caribou drowned in the rain-swollen Caniapiscu River in the Ungava Bay region of Quebec. But Penashue conceded in an interview there is no proof of any link between the military exercises and the drownings.

Meanwhile, efforts to airlift the carcasses to higher land are going so well the job could be finished by the end of this week, an Inuit spokesman said yesterday, adding that more than half have been lifted away.

But he and several other Indian representatives said the screaming jets have scared caribou away from two of their prime hunting regions — one east of Schefferville, Que., and one south of Goose Bay, the Labrador airbase from which the planes fly.

The news conference was the start of a Canadian campaign to halt the flights and cancel the agreement with Germany and Canada's other allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

However, Canada has no intention of cancelling its 10-year agreement with West Germany, a defence department spokesman said.

There are virtually no spots in densely populated Germany where the flights can take place, said Capt. Kevin Carle. "We are taking a responsible position as an ally in NATO."

Kissinger's greeting

As one of more than 20 people protesting against Henry Kissinger's speech at the Sheraton Centre, I can assure your reporter that there was indeed a demonstration (Opportunities Being Created By Gromyko, Kissinger Says — Oct. 10).

Signs reading "Hands off Central America," "≠1 Terrorist," "Remember Vietnam" and others were carried by demonstrators in front of the Sheraton Centre.

Police assault

Why is it that when a police officer is accused of assaulting an individual (Police Abused Witnesses To Beating — Oct. 6), the officer only appears before a Police Complaints Board?

The role of professional review boards is not to override the Criminal Code, or to allow a citizen exemption from criminal proceedings. Had this been any other citizen, surely an assault charge would have been laid. It is the purpose of the judicial courts, not internal review procedures, to decide whether or not a person is guilty of a particular offence and to consider extenuating circumstances which may explain the action of the accused. It should be up to the courts, not the Police Complaint Board, to decide whether or not the officers accused of assaulting an individual are guilty.

Assault is a criminal offence, no matter who does it.

Officer reprimanded for frightening prisoner

10/28/84

STAR

OTTAWA (CP) — A 27-year Ottawa police veteran has been severely reprimanded and lost 14 days of paid vacation for donning a wig and black raincoat to impersonate a judge in frightening a prisoner being held in protective custody because of previous suicide attempts. Const. William Culyer, 49, had approached Timothy Sparling, a disturbed 17-year-old prisoner and told him he was to be jailed for six months.

Group wants to wipe out toys promoting violence

By Robin Harvey Toronto Star

He may be tough, ruthless — and more popular than ever — but a group of Toronto pacifists wants to wipe out G.I. Joe and his rough-and-tumble band of "real American heroes."

"War toys like G.I. Joe are teaching children violence and hatred and must be stopped," says Janina Barrett, co-ordinator of the Toronto branch of a nationwide boycott of war toys.

Barrett was hired by the Cruise Missile Conversion Project, one of more than 30 groups in the Alliance For Non-Violent Action organizing the boycott. She says the boycott was planned because of a rise in sales of war toys — up more than 50 per cent in 1983. The main target is G.I. Joe products, but the group will try to stop the purchases of toy guns and games that suggest killing and destruction.

Barrett says G.I. Joe toys glorify violence and reinforce sexual and racial stereotypes. Often, the "bad guys" are given non-Caucasian racial features, she says, and the TV commercials for them were very violent.

One doll called Major Bludd — Sebastian Bludd from Australia, a mercenary and poet — is especially offensive, she says.

"A mercenary's job is a ruthless one. A soldier for hire, like a pawn shop gun," reads Bludd's message, on the back of his packaging. The original poem — discontinued by the manufacturer but still sold on some store shelves — urges people to cure their blues by taking up a sub-machine gun to "make the suckers jump and dance."

Between now and Christmas, activists plan to picket stores selling war toys, stage protest marches and distribute leaflets in the hope that parents would join the boycott, Barrett says.

Violent children's toys breed violent fantasies

Re, GI Joe invades toy stores (Sept. 26).

It is with a genuine sense of horror that I read of the resurgence of GI Joe dolls. How patriotic can a doll be if it teaches young boys that it is all right to use violence (cluster bombs, tanks, and Mobile Strike Forces) against the enemy.

Violent toys breed violent fantasies. If children want to "work out feelings of aggression and anger" I suggest they use co-operative and interactive toys, not tanks and cluster bombs.

UWO boosts lab security after protest over baboon

The University of Western Ontario has developed special codes for elevators and increased the patrols of guards in its animal research laboratories following a recent protest by animal rights supporters.

Researchers are particularly worried about security around B 43, a baboon that has been the target of animal rights supporters after they learned that it is confined to a chair with tubes surgically inserted into its veins and arteries to take blood samples and into its stomach for feeding.

Mark Tinlin, head of security at Western, said in an interview that surveillance around the laboratories has been increased but he would not comment on the coded elevators and the number of extra guards.

But researchers say anyone trying to get to the animals would have to know special number codes to use elevators and doors to get to the research laboratories.

The new measures were apparently implemented last month after officials feared that someone from the animal rights movement might try to free the baboon.

A Toronto woman had offered to take the place of the baboon but that offer was rejected by researchers. Another Toronto woman, Marlene Lakin, was forced to give up her hunger strike protesting against the baboon's confinement earlier this week after she collapsed

Groups on hunger strike over baboon experiment

Members of two animal rights groups began a hunger strike in Toronto yesterday to protest the use of a baboon for heart research at the University of Western Ontario.

Three members of Ark II and the U.S.-based Fund For Animals said they will camp out in a mobile home across from the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation, which is providing money for the research, and fast until the experiments are ended.

Photographs of the baboon were displayed yesterday beside the camper near the foundation's Church St. offices. They show a baboon strapped into a Plexiglas box, tubes coming out of its body, with its head and arms sticking out of holes cut in the lid.

A senior university official said from London, Ont., that the animals suffer no undue discomfort and that the activist groups are spreading "false, misleading information" to the detriment of important research.

Dr. Douglas Bocking of the health sciences department said someone broke into the laboratories to take the pictures. "You would look distressed if someone broke into your house during the middle of the night," he said.

But Vicki Miller, an Ark II member and hunger striker, said the yellow baboon has been unable to move for months, and is in "extreme distress. We want this cruel exercise ended immediately," she said.

Bocking said the experiments are looking at how cholesterol and fats are formed in the body, and how they contribute to heart attack and stroke.

The animal is fed different liquid diets through the tube. Blood and other tests are taken to determine their effects.

Researchers haven't found a better method, Bocking said.

Miller questioned the university's explanations.

"Their position is that the animal is not in distress but it's a little like slave owners telling everyone the slaves enjoy themselves," she said.

LUTHER BURBANK

Their very weakness and inability to protest, demands that man should refrain from torturing animals for the mere possibility of obtaining some knowledge which he believes may be to his own interest.

Ex-convicts plan march against rope

OTTAWA (CP) — About 200 ex-convicts from across Canada plan to march on Parliament Hill on Nov. 5 to denounce capital punishment and to counter a demonstration that day by police officers and supporters seeking a return of the death penalty.

Gaston Nicholas, founder and director of the Canadian Office of Human Rights, a human-rights group based in Hull, Que., said the march is a response to the Parliament Hill rally planned by police for the day the new Parliament opens.

The Ottawa Police Association hopes to draw thousands of police officers, prison guards and members of the public to its rally in support of the return of capital punishment.

Recent police killings have sparked renewed demands for a return of capital punishment, as well as for a tougher Criminal Code.

Some Conservative MPs have called for a free vote on the subject in the Commons, but Prime Minister Mulroney says it is not a priority of his new Government.

"We know that some officers have been killed, but we call them isolated cases," said Mr. Nicholas, a former Joyceville, Ont., prisoner who has spearheaded several programs for ex-convicts.

"Whenever these things (police shootings) happen, all ex-convicts are blamed. We want society to know that ex-convicts are human beings."

Protest cuts off genetics guru

10/18/84

BOSTON (UPI) — Protesters interrupted a live TV talk show yesterday by draping a swastika-adorned sheet over scientist William Shockley as he discussed his controversial genetic theories.

Shockley, 74, a Stanford University chemical engineering professor, won the Nobel Prize as co-inventor of the transistor. He advocates the idea of voluntary sterilization for people he considers genetically inferior.

Several members of the International Committee Against Racism, who have been active in combating the Ku Klux Klan, continually interrupted Shockley during the show.

At one point a woman unfurled the sheet, walked onto the set and draped it over Shockley as he sat in his chair. The live show was then taken off the air.

Police were called to the studio but no arrests were made. The protesters were allowed to stay in the audience until the end of the show when they agreed on no further disruptions.

Shockley's views about the relative intelligence of blacks and whites have caused him to be target of frequent demonstrations, and his lectures have been broken up in many places.

He believes there ought to be a scientific investigation of whether there is a genetic difference between blacks and whites, but national scientific bodies have repeatedly refused to accept his suggestion for such a study.

Greenpeace members hurt in nuclear protest

LA HAGUE, France (Reuter) — Two members of the international environmentalist organization Greenpeace were injured in a clash with security guards inside a nuclear reprocessing plant yesterday, Greenpeace said.

The two were among a group of activists who infiltrated the plant to protest against the shipping to Japan of 250 kilograms (550 pounds) of radioactive plutonium that had been reprocessed at the plant. The ship carrying the cargo was escorted out of Cherbourg harbor Friday night amid tight se-

Anti-smokers demolish car

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Two opponents of smoking stamped on and kicked a racing car bearing the name of a brand of cigaret, then painted it and sprinkled cigaret butts and ashes on it, a court was told.

Facing charges of "maliciously injuring" an Alfa Romeo were Richard Bolzan, a part-time teacher, and a man calling himself Lord Bloody Wog Rolo, who described himself as a professional alarmist.

The two men, who pleaded not guilty, also tried to drag the car from an art gallery where it was part of a display sponsored by a leading tobacco company, a prosecutor told the court yesterday.

Mr. Bolzan, wearing a white boiler-suit and hat with anti-smoking stickers, chained himself to the car and read aloud from a pamphlet.

The two men said they were active supporters of an anti-smoking organization called Billboard Utilizing Graffitiists Against Unhealthy Promotions, known as BUGA-UP.

Scores reported hurt in Panama as police attack demonstrators

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Anti-riot police firing rifles and swinging rubber truncheons attacked a group of anti-government demonstrators in downtown Panama City early today, injuring scores and arresting at least 50, witnesses said.

The attack that broke up an all-night protest rally at Cathedral Plaza came on the eve of Nicolas Ardito Barletta's inauguration as the first directly elected civilian president in Panama in 16 years.

Eugenio Morice, an organizer of the rally, said about 300 or 400 anti-riot police, who are known as "dobermans" after a badge they wear that depicts a barking doberman pinscher, participated in the attack.

The all-night vigil was called to protest widespread allegations of fraud in the May 6 presidential elections.

Ardito Barletta was elected with the support of the military and the official Revolutionary Democratic Party by a margin of 1,713 votes out of some 640,000 cast. He is to be inaugurated tomorrow.

Man gets 89-day term for inking Constitution

OTTAWA (CP-UPC) — A Toronto art student has been sentenced to 89 days in jail for pouring red ink on an original copy of the Constitution to protest the testing of cruise missiles in Canada.

County Court Judge David McWilliam said Peter Greyson, 24, could serve the sentence on weekends. He also placed Greyson on probation for two years and ordered him to do 100 hours of work for the John Howard Society, an organization devoted to helping prisoners.

The judge noted that Greyson said at his trial a few weeks ago he still feels morally justified in staining the Constitution document.

Greyson visited the National Archives on July 22, 1983, a week after then prime minister Pierre Trudeau announced that tests of the United States missile would be permitted.

He asked to see one of the two original copies of the Constitution, signed by the Queen, and when it was brought to him, splashed it with red ink to protest the cruise decision. The government has since spent thousands of dollars trying unsuccessfully to remove the stain.

McWilliam said he considered sentencing Greyson to restitution but felt this wasn't practical, given the money involved and the effect it might have on Greyson's possibly "brilliant" future as an artist.

He told Greyson that instead of defacing the Constitution, he should have used it to fight his cause in the courts.

Greyson was charged with damaging public property, an offence that carries a maximum sentence of 14 years in prison.

Peter Greyson: Also put on probation for two years.

W. German police hurt in anti-nuclear protest

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuter) — Six policemen were injured, one seriously, when an anti-nuclear demonstration in Hamburg turned into a riot, police said.

The demonstration of about 1,500 anti-nuclear protesters started out peacefully, but later about 200 pelted police with rocks. There were 17 arrests.

Williams loses suit against police

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rock singer Wendy O. Williams has lost a $6-million lawsuit she filed against city police, claiming she was fondled and beaten in a 1981 arrest for an allegedly obscene performance by her group the Plasmatics.

A jury deliberated about five hours Thursday before clearing six police officers named as defendants by Williams, her manager, Rod Swenson, former Plasmatics bass player Jean Marie Beaudoir and stagehand Peter Capadocia. Jurors ruled Williams was not sexually assaulted, that police were within their rights to arrest her and did not use excessive force or violate her civil rights during the Jan. 19, 1981, arrest.

Charges against her later were dismissed.

Dr. Spock arrested in protest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police arrested child-care specialist Dr. Benjamin Spock, his wife and at least four other people yesterday during a protest at the White House.

The group had unfurled a large banner along the Pennsylvania Ave. side of the executive mansion that read: "Choose for the Future, Dis-Arm Now." A U.S. Park Police officer said the six — including peace activist Philip Berrian's son and daughter, 10-year-old Frida and 9-year-old Jerry — would be charged with "having a stationary sign in a prohibited area."

Winnipeg inquiry into violent protest resumes hearings

WINNIPEG (CP) — After a two-month recess, an inquiry resumed yesterday into police handling of a protest demonstration that turned violent last Oct. 28 outside the U.S. consulate.

The demonstration began as a peaceful protest against the U.S. invasion of Grenada but the scene turned ugly after six members of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles militia unit, wearing army field outfits and carrying pro-U.S. signs, strode into the crowd.

The last witness to be summoned by Perry Schulman, lawyer for the Manitoba Police Commission, was Manitoba Communist Party Leader Paula Fletcher, who participated in the demonstration.

Protester's charge dropped

A technical error has resulted in a charge of mischief being thrown out against an anti-cruise missile protester.

Leonard Desroches, 35, of Grant St., pleaded not guilty to two charges of mischief to private property involving Litton Systems Canada Ltd., which makes guidance components for the U.S. cruise missile.

Etobicoke Provincial Court Judge J. L. Clendenning nullified the charges when he noted the information read that Desroches committed the offence on Dec. 18, 1983. Assistant crown attorney Steve Allan asked for the charge to read Nov. 18, 1983, instead of Dec. 18. The judge refused because the charge was already more than six months old.

Trials and Updates

One new trial coming up that is worth mentioning, is that of FRANK FERRIS, a local punk and activist. Seems that while he was with a friend who was supposedly shoplifting, Frank had decided to run from the scene, leaving himself open to be tackled by the police. He was then charged with 'resisting arrest' and 'assault police'. His date to set a trial is Nov. 9 at Old City Hall courts, 10 am.

On Oct. 10, Kaz Krechowicz went to court to face a trespass charge, but although he was only 10 minutes late, the courtroom proceedings were over! Further info next issue.

On Oct. 16, Lorraine Munro faced a trespass charge stemming from a c.d. action at Ont. Hydro. She was also representing Sue Dyement and Kathy McGlinn. After an interesting trial in which her supporters were questioned by the judge while they were observing, Lorraine was found guilty and fined only $1!! She was not allowed to read a prepared statement though. The charges against Sue and Kathy were dropped as well.

As well on Oct. 16, Bruce Cattle faced a charge of poster on a pole, and had decided to fight it using the Charter of Rights. After lengthy submissions from his lawyer, Bruce was found guilty and was given a suspended sentence. However, the J.P. suggested to him that he take it further, to a higher court, which is what he is doing! His appeal will be heard on Dec. 6, at Old City Hall courts.

Indian leader jailed for 3 years

10/9/84 SCW

CUSTER, S.D. (UPI) — Circuit Judge Marshall Young yesterday sentenced American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks to three years in prison, nine years after his conviction on riot and assault charges.

Banks, 47, fled South Dakota after his 1975 conviction. He was convicted of riot and assault charges resulting from a 1973 attempt to burn down the Custer County courthouse. The rioters were protesting a manslaughter charge against a white man for killing an Indian.

During a pre-sentencing hearing Banks' attorney, William Kunstler, asked Young to place the Indian leader on parole for the conviction, which carried a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison.

Kunstler said the judge had the opportunity to establish racial harmony in South Dakota.

"It would be a monstrous tragedy and the punishment out of all proportions if Dennis Banks were sent to jail by this court," he said.

Two Greens are ejected

10/19/84 SCW

BONN (Reuter) — Two members of the environmentalist Greens party were ejected from parliament yesterday, one for suggesting Chancellor Helmut Kohl accepted bribes and the other for shouting an obscenity.

The ejections came after Jürgen Reents said the Chancellor is a man "whose rise to the head of his party ... was bought by the Flick concern."

The Flick industrial empire has been accused of bribing political parties.

Later, Joseph Fischer was expelled.

Kunstler said he would appeal the sentence.

Means noted he was convicted of more serious crimes than Banks in the Custer County break-in. He said he originally was charged with seven felony counts but plea bargained his sentence down to just 30 days in jail.

Kunstler also filed 15 statements of support for Banks from various individuals, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson and singer Harry Belafonte.

Banks still faces a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Four-letter rock banned in Britain

10/8/84 STAR

LONDON (Special) — A controversial court ruling in Britain makes it legal for the police to raid stores carrying records that have lyrics with "obscene" words.

Ruled obscene were "Plastic Surgery Disasters" and "Fresh Fruit For Rotting Vegetables" by The Dead Kennedys; "Used, Abused And Unamused" by Icons Of Filth; and "Sheep Farming In The Falklands" by The Crass.

The discs were seized by police from a store in Norwich, Cheshire. But the owner, Graham Cheadle, argued that the offending four-letter word in all the tunes also was used on several records that were not taken, including the raunchy old "Derek & Clive" comedy series by Peter Cook and Dudley Moore.

Cheadle has been ordered to forfeit his complete stock of material ruled obscene and it has caused consternation within the British record industry.

Says Iain McNay, managing director of the Cherry Red Label (two of whose albums were judged obscene), "I don't think there is a major record company in the country that has not brought out a record with the offending four-letter word on it. As things stand, Pink Floyd's 'Dark Side Of The Moon' would be rated obscene."

U.K. Ecology party won't turn Greens

10/9/84 STAR

LONDON (AP) — Members of Britain's Ecology party have voted down a proposal to get into line with Europe and call themselves Greens.

Supporters of the move argued at a weekend conference that the change would create a stronger bond with Die Grünen in West Germany, Les Verts in France and De Groenen in the Netherlands. Opponents said the name might identify the Ecology party with Irish nationalism or give it an air of amateurism.

Enemies of the State

DINO & GARY BUTLER

—from Ishbel Butler.

Greetings People, There is many people i need to write to so hope you all will excuse this form letter. Is much to do and time is pressing.

First, Gary was finally shipped from Edmonton to Kent on Sept. 12th, almost two months after the court of appeals decided they should have a new trial. That decision on July 17th, meant that Dino and Gary were suppose to no longer be considered federal prisoners and were eligible for bail. But you can't apply for bail until you are moved to a remand centre.

The crown normally sends the court order to the prison for this. They did not. Our lawyers went after the court order. The judge was on holidays. When he came back it took him 1½ weeks to sign it. It was sent to the prisons but Edmonton said it was the wrong copy. So our lawyers got what they wanted and sent it special delivery. The prison kept saying they hadn't received it. We contacted an investigative reporter who called the prison. Surprise! They found it. Two weeks later, Gary was returned to B.C.

On Sept. 13th, Dino and Gary were moved to Oakalla. That day they began setting things up so that they could hold a Pipe Ceremony. From phone calls, they are doing good and are real happy to see each other again.

Today will be their first meeting together with the lawyers. Feelings are they will be offered a deal. Plead guilty to possession and get a suspended sentence for time served. But there will be no deals.

The trial has been set for Nov. 14 to the 23rd. Dino and Gary want the lawyers to try and get the date moved forward. Also they will be applying for a bail hearing. Since they have served almost all their time they were sentenced to, they normally would get bail. But being who they are and how the gov. fears the truth they speak, it is not expected.

It is nuts for the gov. to be putting them through another trial at this time. Dino's release date was Oct. 84 and Gary's April 85. Now one month after the date when Dino should have returned to the states, he will go to trial up here again. This can only be seen as further harassment. Why did it take so long for the decision? The appeal has been delayed by the courts since Feb. 82.

Much work is ahead. Fundraising to cover travel costs of character witnesses, mailouts, phone bills, etc. We are all feeling good, really good. Glad to be together and ready to work.

We send our Strength, Love and Prayers through the wind - the Creator's breath of Life.

In Total Resistance,
Ishbel.

Appeal To The People

Our brothers, Gary and Dino Butler have remained strong in their struggle for Freedom of Religion for Native peoples. They have helped immensely to bring the traditional ways into the Iron Houses in this country.

At their trial in Feb. 81, the judge refused to allow the Sacred Pipe to be present in the courtroom. Because their Spirit, their existence was totally denied in the court, they asked their lawyers to resign. Out of respect for their beliefs, the lawyers withdrew and the Butlers remained mute throughout the trial. They were sentenced to four years. Immediately, they began an appeal based on that the denial of the Sacred Pipe was a denial of Freedom of Religion. The appeal also dealt with the systematic exclusion of Native people from the jury selection process, making a fair trial by a "jury of peers" impossible for Native peoples in this country.

The courts delayed the appeal for 2½ years and then a few months before their release dates, reversed the decision. Their case has now set a precedent that Natives be included in jury panels! Also, the appeal decision states that an accused may have a treasured object in the court for so-called, which means that Natives now have a legal ruling to support having the Sacred Pipe present during the trial.

Now Gary and Dino are back where they started, in Oakalla. They will go on trial November 14 - 23, 1984. Reality is, they could be re-convicted and given longer sentences. OUR BROTHERS NEED YOUR SUPPORT!

Funds are needed to bring in character witnesses, for bail money (if bail is granted), for office supplies, long-distance calls, mail-outs, etc. Any amount would be greatly appreciated. Make money orders or cheques payable to:

Red Peoples march ends at Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) ^{10/13/84 CWS/E} — Cyril Keeper says he understands. He does not necessarily agree, but he understands.

The 41-year-old Métis MP stood on the manicured Parliament Hill lawn yesterday on the fringes of a demonstration by about 100 young Indians who view Parliament and the Constitution with suspicion and contempt.

They had walked here — a march that began May 1, 1983, in Victoria — stopping in each centre along the way to tell Canadians about broken treaties, the rape of Indian land and the oppression of Indian rights and culture.

Their Red Peoples Walk ended on Parliament Hill, although people such as 29-year-old John Graham, who walked every mile of the trek, consider the House of Commons a malevolent force in Indian life.

The message of the march, says Mr. Graham, is to "look at the truth and continually analyze this Canadian Government and this corporate Constitution."

The marchers, a loose assembly of Western Canadian Indians, consider the protection of aboriginal rights in the Constitution and talk of granting Indians some degree of self-government just the measly-mouthed duplicity of white governments. Even Indian leaders who work with MPs are sellouts, says Mr. Graham.

All this must be uncomfortable for Mr. Keeper, a New Democrat MP since 1980 who now represents Winnipeg North Centre.

"I see no sellout in my activities," says Mr. Keeper, who grew up in the Métis community of Matheson Island in northern Manitoba. "If I come here living my values, then there is no sellout."

But perhaps they are right to be skeptical of government, Mr. Keeper says.

"I am in solidarity with what they are doing here. It doesn't in my mind negate in any way the efforts I make (as an MP) in order to improve the conditions of our people."

Mr. Keeper says he will speak out about the aspirations of natives to govern themselves and to win greater constitutional rights.

70,000 South Africans boycott schools to protest army raids

JOHANNESBURG (AP) ^{10/12/84 S7/A2} — More than 70,000 children in four black South African townships boycotted their schools yesterday after 7,000 troops raided their communities and conducted a house-to-house search for riot instigators.

Those townships south of Johannesburg were quiet, but police said violence flared in other townships east and west of Johannesburg and in the eastern Cape Province.

Two people were injured, 14 rioters were arrested and an unspecified number of buildings were set afire, a police spokesman said.

Police used rubber bullets and birdshot several times to disperse crowds of youths in townships around Johannesburg and in the Port Elizabeth area in the south-east of the country, he said.

Yesterday, the army pulled out of the townships where thousands of people had been interrogated in the middle of the night in the hunt for what officials called revolutionaries and instigators of riots that have broken out almost daily.

Police acknowledged that none of the 358 people arrested in the raids by army and police units Tuesday had been charged with security violations.

More than 80 black people and a white infant have been killed in the unrest that has simmered since January.

Police battle rioters in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) ^{10/12/84 S7/A2} — Renewed rioting and arson erupted in South Africa yesterday as the government defended its crackdown on riot-stricken townships and said it was committed to political reforms in black communities. Police used teargas to fight crowds of stone-throwing youths in four townships.

DOUG CAN'T FIGHT ALONE

Doug Stewart, one of the Vancouver Five, began a hunger strike on October 6th in an effort to be transferred back to a prison in B.C. where he will be closer to friends and family.

Stewart was given a six year sentence in June for his admitted participation in the bombing of a B.C. Hydro substation on Vancouver Island that had been claimed by Direct Action. In July he was sent to Kent penitentiary about eighty miles from Vancouver. Almost immediately he was shipped to Archambault Institution outside of Montreal even though it is the stated policy of the Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) to keep prisoners in their home province.

It is very difficult for an English-speaking prisoner in Archambault as both the prisoners and administrators are predominately francophone. The language difference effectively isolates and demoralizes any English-speaking prisoner. It is very difficult for a new prisoner to learn the ropes of prison existence when there are few other prisoners with whom to communicate. While still in Kent, Stewart was informed that the RCMP were influential in the decision to ship him to Québec.

Upon arrival at Archambault Doug was given a job in the Machine Shop. He was relatively content but was sent to the Shoe Shop where his job was to place tongues in the assembled shoes. The reason given for the shift was that his security rating was "too high" for the Machine Shop. He applied for a Computer Science course but was told that there was no space. In response, Stewart quit his job and was immediately thrown into segregation.

While in the "hole" a prisoner spends 23 hours a day in his cell, getting only 45 minutes a day of exercise time. There is no contact with other prisoners. As of October fifteenth, he still had not received a hearing about his segregation.

Since October sixth, Doug has been taking liquids but no solid foods. Shortly after the strike began he fell, hitting his head and lost a quantity of blood. He was placed in the infirmary where prison officials have said he will remain until the strike is over. As with any hungerstrike inside an institution, the danger exists that the authorities will attempt to forcefeed. This process has been described as "a torturous process that can injure or even kill a person."

We urge you to write letters requesting that Doug be transferred back to B.C. and that no attempt to forcefeed him is made.

DOUG HAS WON!!!

News of the Correctional Service of Canada's decision to transfer Doug to Kent Prison in British Columbia has finally come. The details of exactly when are sketchy, but apparently his lawyer in Montreal received a letter stating he will be transferred. This news comes as Doug was in his 26th day of his hunger strike. Irreparable damage to his liver has already begun, and his heart rate was down to 34 (normal levels being 60-80). His situation was critical, to say the least. If you would like more details, write AANN.
